Lana's Big Dream

Lana was a happy six-year-old girl with a bright smile and curious eyes.

She loved asking questions and learning new things every day.

But Lana had one special dream.

"I want to be a teacher," she said proudly.

She loved helping others learn, just like her teachers helped her.

Playing School at Home

At home, Lana lined up her dolls and teddy bears.

They sat very quietly on the floor.

“Good morning, class!” Lana said with a big smile.

She used a notebook as a board and pretended to write letters and numbers.

Her toys were the best students ever.

Lana the Helper

At school, Lana loved to help her friends.
If someone didn't understand, she explained gently.

"Don't worry," Lana said kindly.

"I'll help you."

Her teacher noticed and smiled.

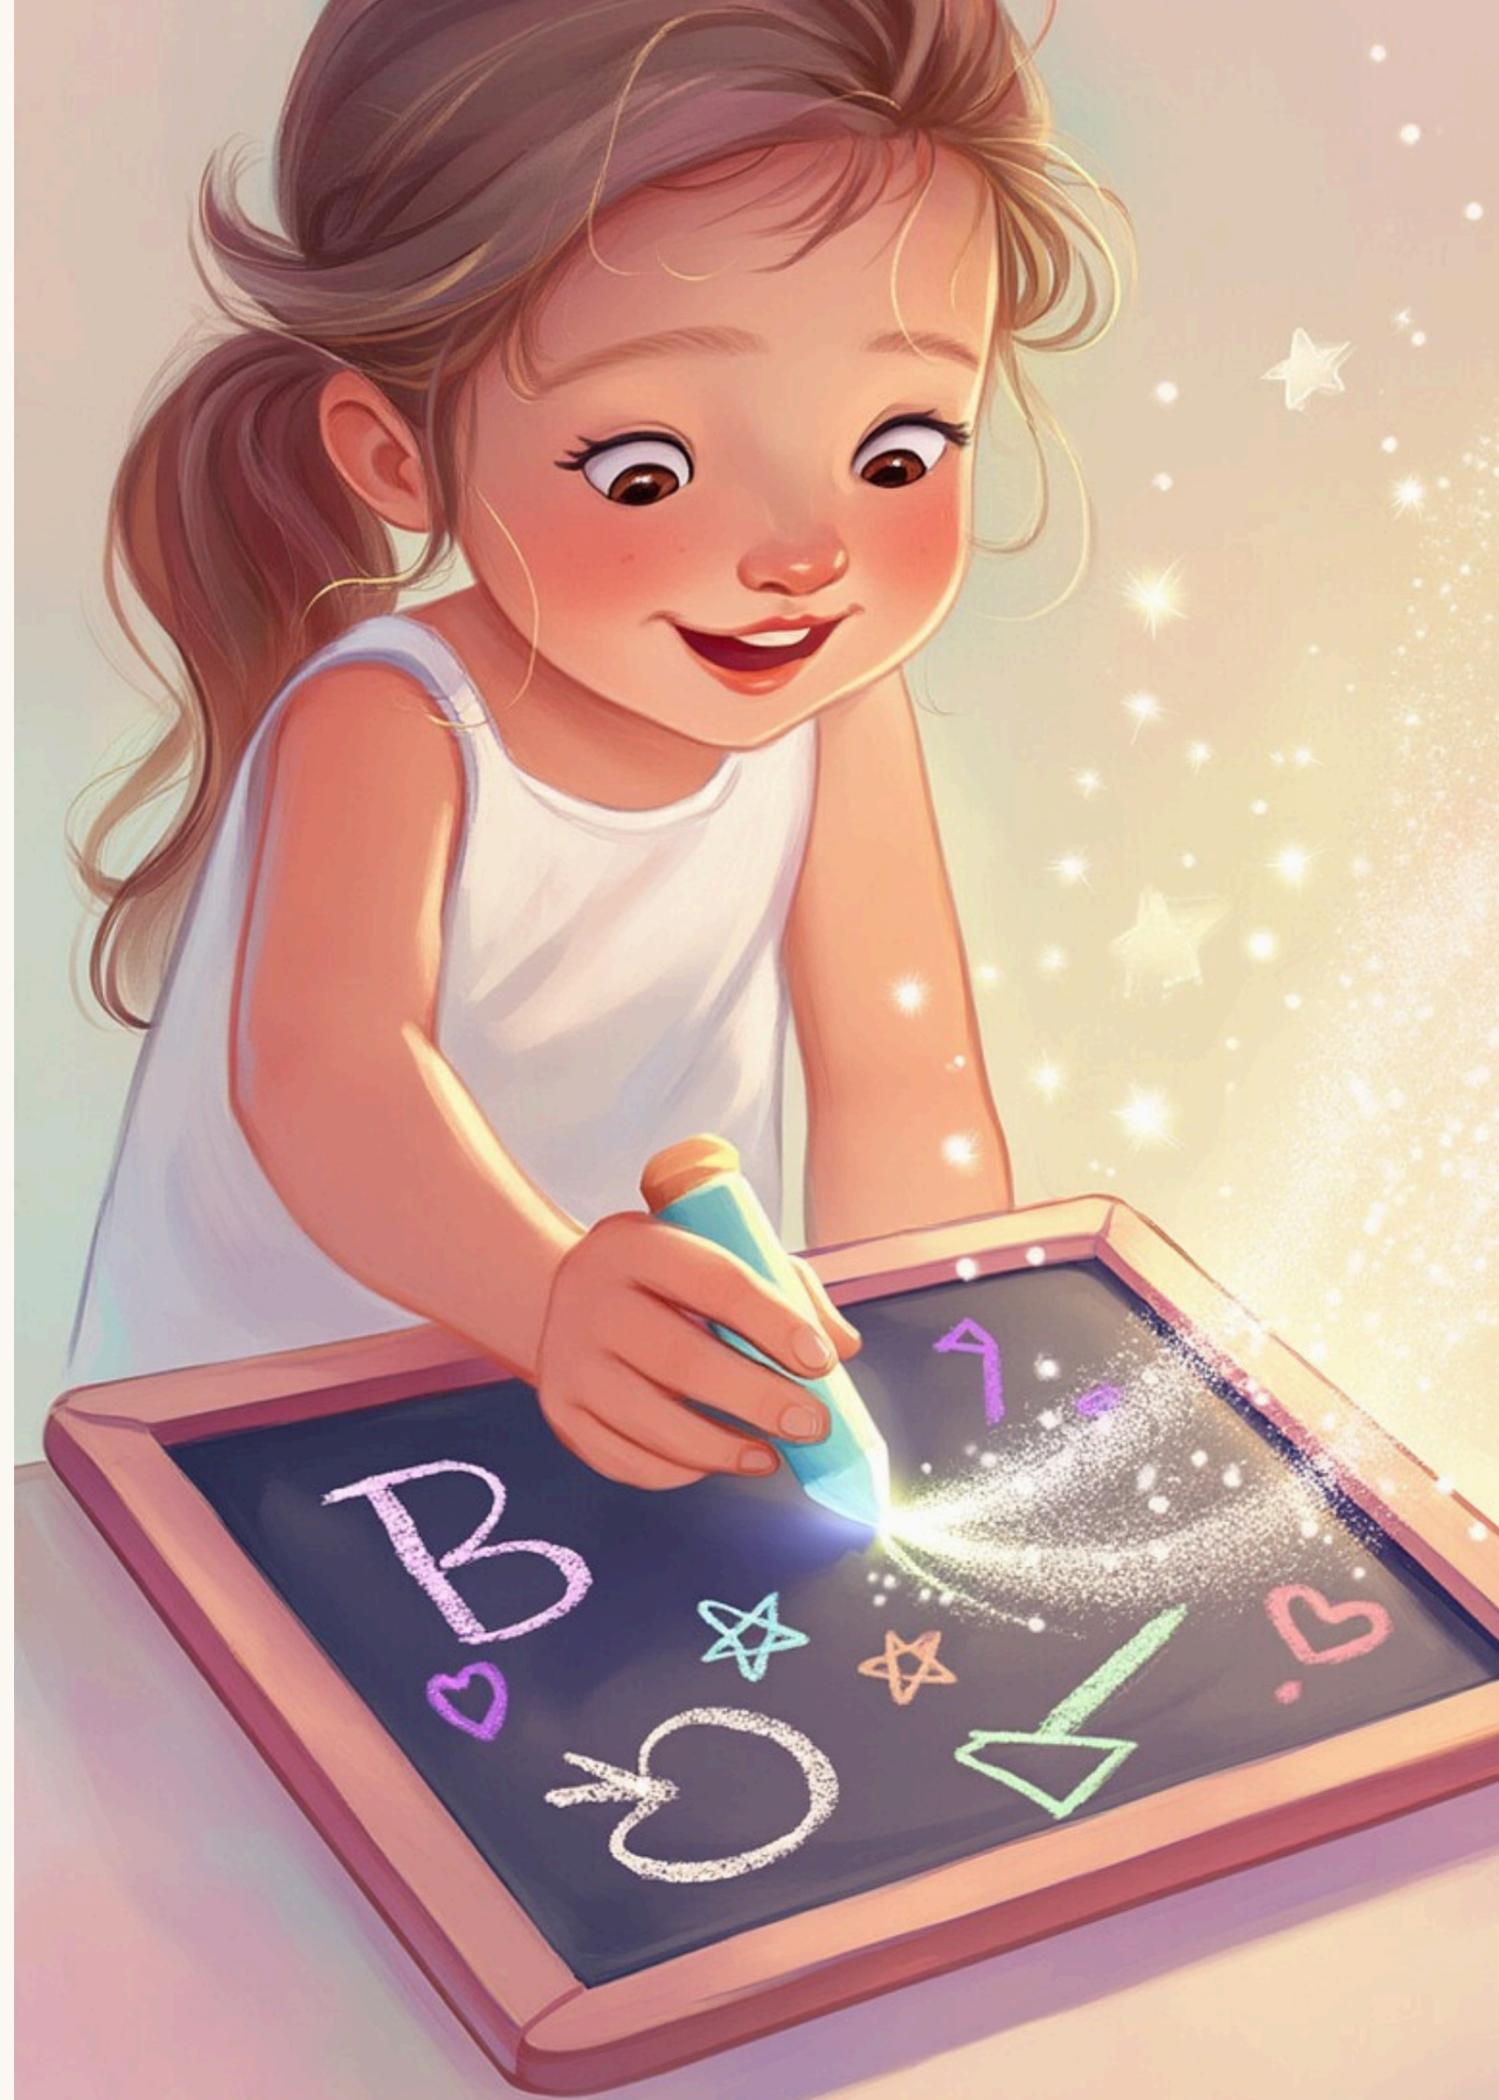

A Special Chalk

One day, Lana found a piece of colorful chalk.

It made her feel magical.

She drew letters, stars, and hearts.

"This is my teacher chalk," she whispered happily.

Teaching Letters

Lana loved letters.

A, B, C!

She taught her little brother and her toys
how to read simple words.

"Learning is fun!" Lana laughed.

Teaching Numbers

Numbers were Lana's friends too.

"One, two, three," she counted slowly.

She used apples, blocks, and crayons to make numbers easy and fun.

Learning to Be Kind

Lana knew a teacher must be kind.

She shared her pencils and smiled at everyone.

“A good teacher has a big heart,” she said.

The Class Gets Loud

One day, Lana's pretend class was noisy.

Her dolls fell over.

Her teddy bear didn't listen.

Lana took a deep breath.

"Please listen," she said calmly.

Never Giving Up

Sometimes teaching was hard.

But Lana did not give up.

She tried again and again, with patience and love.

"I can do this," she said bravely.

Lana's First Real Student

One afternoon, her cousin came to visit.

Lana taught her letters and colors.

Her cousin clapped.

"You are a great teacher!"

Lana felt proud.

School Day Surprise

At school, the teacher asked Lana to help the class.

Lana stood up and showed everyone how to write a word.

The class clapped.

Her heart danced with joy.

Dreaming Big

That night, Lana dreamed.

She dreamed of a big classroom, happy children, and colorful books.

She wore a teacher's smile.

Growing Every Day

Lana knew she was still little.

But every day, she learned more.

“Every teacher starts small,” she said.

Lana the Future Teacher

Lana hugged her books and smiled.

"One day, I will be a real teacher," she said proudly.

And everyone knew—

Lana's dream would come true
